

Website Privacy Statement and Privacy Policy Notice

About Cookies:

Cookies ("cookies") are short text files placed on the browser of your computer by websites you visit. Cookies will not connect to your system and will not damage your files. Cookies can be "permanent" or "temporary" cookies. The persistent cookie is stored by the browser for a specified period of time, unless it is previously deleted by the user; however, the temporary cookie is not stored by the browser and is automatically deleted when the browser is closed. We also use cookies in order to make our website work as efficiently as possible. Cookies allow a website to recognize returning users and allow us to collect information about our users' behavior, such as which country you are logged into, what browser software and operating system you are using, what your IP address is, and on our website which features you used. We will not collect personally identifiable information unless you provide it voluntarily. We use the data to improve our website, to analyze our traffic and to promote our advertising strategy. If you do not consent to the setting of a cookie, you can do so through the settings (disable, revoke) in your browser. In this case, the use of certain services may be restricted or prevented.

Information about Ads:

Third-party vendors, such as Google, use cookies to serve ads based on a user's previous visits to the site. Google's use of the DART cookie allows Google and its partners to serve ads to users based on visits to your site and other sites on the Internet.

Users can disable the use of the DART cookie by visiting the ad opt-out page. (You may also direct users to the Network Advertising Initiative opt-out page to opt out of the use of third party cookies.) On this site, Google provides paid links and links to visitors to the site. Visitors may opt out of some, if not all, of the cookies on the Network Advertising Initiative's opt-out website at www.networkadvertising.org/managing.

What is a DoubleClick DART cookie?

The DoubleClick DART cookie is used by Google to serve ads on its partners' sites, such as sites displaying AdSense ads or participating in Google-approved ad networks. When users visit a partner's site and either view an ad or click on an ad, a cookie may be placed in that end user's browser. The information collected from such cookies is used to help publishers better serve and manage ads on their websites and on the Internet.
